

English

Year 7

Cambridge Lower Secondary
Student Manual

PRIME BOOKS

English

Year 7 · Student Manual

The Writer's Desk

Stories, poems and the craft of the written word. A Cambridge Pathway student book for Lower Secondary, written for pupils of about eleven and twelve years old.

Prime Books · the publishing imprint of Prime School
www.primeschool.pt

First edition, 2026. © Prime School 2026. All rights reserved.

An independent publication. This book is an original work produced by Prime School for use within its own programmes of study. It is not affiliated with, licensed by, endorsed by or otherwise approved by Cambridge University Press & Assessment, nor by any examination body. References to curriculum frameworks represent the interpretation of the authors.

Original texts. Every story, poem and article in this book is an original work written for this edition. Factual references are drawn from real, credited sources listed in Sources and references.

British English edition. Interior 210 × 270 mm. Typeset in Spectral with display in Lexend.

Contents

Before you begin	4
How this book works	4
Unit 1 Adventure	7
1.1 The start of an adventure	8
1.2 The quest	10
1.3 Building suspense	12
1.4 A hard journey	13
1.5 The writer's toolkit	15
1.6 Writing your own adventure	15
Final project · The adventure anthology	17
Unit 2 The signal from below	–
Unit 3 Stage and script	–
Unit 4 Voices from the past	–
Unit 5 Argument and persuasion	–
Units 2 to 5 are in preparation and are not in this sample.
Word list	20
Sources and references	21
For teachers	21

UNIT 1 AT A GLANCE

SESSION	TEXT TYPE	READING	WRITING	SPEAKING
1.1	Adventure fiction	Genre, setting, context	Notes on meaning	Pair prediction
1.2	Narrative extract	Quest structure	Character monologue	Read aloud
1.3	Suspense fiction	How writers hold a reader	Suspense sentences	Compare effects
1.4	Poetry	Alliteration and sibilance	Journey stanza notes	Perform a poem
1.5	Mixed extracts	Language and effect	Analytical sentence	Justify a reading
1.6	Your own writing	Reading as an editor	Suspenseful opening	Peer feedback

Before you begin

You become a better writer by reading like a writer, and a better reader by writing like a reader. Every unit in this book pairs an original text with the craft that makes it work, then asks you to use that craft yourself.

✧ ORIGINAL TEXTS, REAL CRAFT

Every story and poem here was written for this book. You are always reading something new, and always learning a technique writers really use.

► READ CLOSELY, THEN WRITE

Each session moves the same way: read, notice how it was made, then make something of your own using the same tools.

↔ YOUR VOICE MATTERS

You will read aloud, perform, argue a case and give feedback. Speaking is not an extra here. It is part of how you learn to write.

How this book works

🕒 IN THIS SESSION, YOU WILL

Here you can find what you are going to learn.

“ EXTRACT

An original story, poem or script written for this book. Read it more than once.

✧ GETTING STARTED

A short talk or think task before any teaching. There is no wrong answer yet.

► HERE IS HOW IT WORKS

The teaching, kept short on purpose. One idea, clearly said.

● YOUR TURN

Numbered questions and writing tasks. Leave real space for your answers.

✓ NOW I CAN

A checklist at the end of a stretch of work. Be honest with yourself.

✦ BEFORE WE GET STARTED

Those four questions are the skeleton of almost every adventure ever told.

In this unit you will learn to see that skeleton beneath any story, and then to build a story of your own upon it.

🕒 READER'S TOOLKIT

When you come across a word you do not know:

1. Read the whole sentence again.
2. Look at the words around it for clues.
3. Try a meaning that fits, then check whether the next sentence still makes sense.

What you will need

- A pencil and a pen (draft in pencil if you prefer, polish in pen)
- This book, open flat
- A partner for speaking tasks
- Quiet enough to read an extract twice

You do not need a screen for Unit 1. The adventure is on paper.

How the desk works

1 TALK ABOUT BOOKS

In pairs, name the line you liked most, and say why that line, not any other.

2 PROTECT DRAFT TIME

A first draft is meant to be imperfect. Revision is the craft, not a punishment.

3 READ ALOUD

Hearing a sentence is the fastest way to hear a false note. Be a good audience.

4 KEEP PORTUGUESE

Names, places and euros in this book are deliberate. Real life is allowed on the page.

► THE FOUR ADVENTURE QUESTIONS

Almost every adventure answers, in some order:

1. Who is the protagonist and what do they want?
2. What stands in the way?
3. What must be risked?
4. What changes by the end?

Keep those four questions beside you while you read Unit 1. You will meet them again when you write.

UNIT 1 · THE WRITER'S DESK

1

Adventure

Reading like a writer, writing like a reader

A still morning. An impossible detail. A choice to go further.

🕒 IN THIS UNIT, YOU WILL

- ☐ Explore how genre and setting shape an adventure story.
- ☐ Read an original adventure extract closely and critically.
- ☐ Plan and write a monologue in a character's voice.
- ☐ Discover how poets use alliteration and sibilance.
- ☐ Analyse how language choices create suspense.
- ☐ Write and edit the suspenseful opening of your own story.

✦ GETTING STARTED

Adventure stories are a genre. That means they share recognisable features. In pairs, discuss:

- the kinds of characters you meet in adventure stories
- the kinds of settings where adventures happen
- what usually goes wrong, and what danger appears
- how adventure stories usually end

Compare your ideas with another partner. Apart from the hero, what other sorts of people tend to appear in adventure stories?

■ KEY WORDS

- genre: a particular type of text, such as adventure, comedy or fantasy.
- setting: the place and time in which a story happens.

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.1

The start of an adventure

Here is how it works

An adventure often begins in a familiar place that suddenly feels strange. The writer shows you the ordinary world first, then places one impossible detail inside it. That detail is the door into the story.

The extract

Read this opening of an original adventure story, written for this book. It is about a girl called Beatriz, whose adventure begins on the morning she finds something impossible in her grandfather's boatyard.

The setting. A boatyard at Cascais, early morning: wooden hulls on trestles, coiled rope, and a brass compass on the bench.

“EXTRACT 1 · ‘THE TIDE THAT WAITED’

The morning the tide refused to turn, Beatriz was the only one who noticed. She had grown up in the boatyard at Cascais, and she knew the harbour the way other children knew their own bedrooms: every rope, every rusted cleat, every gull that thought it owned the place. The tide came in, the tide went out. That was the rule. That morning, it simply stopped, as if the whole Atlantic were holding its breath.

Her grandfather was down by the water, standing very still. 'Avô?' she called. He did not turn. In his hands he held the old brass compass that had belonged to his grandfather, and its needle was spinning, slowly, the wrong way. 'Beatriz,' he said at last, in the quiet voice he used for storms and funerals. 'Go inside. Lock the door.' But she did not go inside, because that was the moment she saw the light under the water, green and patient, watching.

● READING TIP

When you come across a word you do not know, use the sentences around it to work out its meaning. In the first paragraph, you can work out what "holding its breath" suggests about the sea by thinking about how still and silent the harbour has become.

1. Practise working out meanings from context. These words come from the extract. What do you think each means?

- a. cleat
- b. compass
- c. patient

2. What is the setting of this story? Find two details that tell you.
3. Beatriz's grandfather says "in the quiet voice he used for storms and funerals". What does this tell you about what is coming?

■ KEY WORDS

- context: the words and situation around something, which help you understand it.

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.2

The quest

Here is how it works

Beatriz's adventure is a quest: a journey with a goal, full of obstacles. In the next part of the story she leaves the safety of the boatyard to discover why the tide has stopped, and what the green light wants. A quest story is built from a chain of events, each one harder than the last.

From reading to writing

1. Plan a monologue called 'The Light under the Water', told from Beatriz's point of view, for the moment she first rows out towards the green light.
 - a. On your own, make brief notes on:
 - what Beatriz can see, hear and feel as she rows out
 - what she is afraid of, and what she hopes to find
 - a. Think about the narrative structure of your monologue. List the events in the order you will tell them.
2. Now write your monologue. You are writing from Beatriz's point of view, so you must capture her voice. She is young, but she is brave and curious; she has also been warned to stay away, so she may be cautious and a little frightened. Choose words that convey all of this.

MONOLOGUE DRAFT · 'THE LIGHT UNDER THE WATER'

 PEER ASSESSMENT

In groups, take turns reading your monologue aloud.

- Which parts of each monologue were the most interesting to listen to, and why?
- Did the writer capture Beatriz's voice? Give reasons for your assessment.

 SPEAKING TIP

Before you read your monologue aloud, plan how you will speak. Which words will you emphasise? Where will you pause? How can you make the moment the light appears sound thrilling?

 KEY WORDS

- voice: the way a particular character speaks or thinks in fiction, or a writer's tone in non-fiction.
- narrative structure: the order in which the events of a story are told.

 NOW I CAN

- ☐ I can predict how a story might develop.
- ☐ I can identify the features of a monologue.
- ☐ I can write and perform a monologue in a character's voice.

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.3

Building suspense

Here is how it works

Suspense is the feeling of anxious excitement that makes you keep reading. Writers create it on purpose. They withhold information, slow down at the dangerous moment, and make the familiar feel suddenly strange.

1. Look again at the extract in Session 1.1. Find one example of each technique:
 - a. something the writer does not explain, so you have to read on
 - b. a place where the writing slows down at a tense moment
 - c. an ordinary, familiar thing that becomes unsettling

THINK LIKE A WRITER

Take the sentence "She opened the door." Rewrite it three different ways to build suspense, using a different technique each time: withhold something, slow the moment down, or make the ordinary strange. Which of your three versions is most effective, and why?

THREE SUSPENSE REWRITES OF "SHE OPENED THE DOOR."

→ GO A LITTLE FURTHER

Write a fourth version that uses all three techniques in one paragraph: withhold something, slow the moment, and make one ordinary object feel wrong. Read it to a partner without saying which techniques you used. Can they name them?

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.4

A hard journey

The poem

Adventures are not only told in prose. Read this original poem about a traveller crossing a difficult country.

EXTRACT 2 · 'THE LONG ROAD OVER SERRA'

*The road was stone, the sky was grey,
I walked where wind and wild goats stray.*

*My boots were worn, my pack was sore,
The summit seemed a day or more.*

*The sleet came soft, then sharp, then slow,
It whispered through the pass below.*

*But still I climbed, and still I sang,
Until the church-bell coldly rang.*

*And there below, the village lay,
Its lamps aglow at close of day.*

*I stumbled down, my journey done,
The road behind, the rest begun.*

1. Copy and complete this table to list the events of each stanza. The first has been done as an example.

STANZA	WHAT HAPPENS
1	The narrator describes the hard, stony road and grey sky.
2
3
4
5
6

II LANGUAGE FOCUS

Poets use sound effects deliberately. Alliteration is the repetition of a consonant sound at the start of nearby words, as in "stone" and "sky". It can make a line feel hard, fast or forceful.

Sibilance is the repetition of soft 's' and 'sh' sounds, as in "sleet came soft, then sharp, then slow". It can suggest whispering, wind or water. Read the poem aloud and listen for both.

1. Read the poem again. Identify one example of alliteration and one of sibilance, and describe the effect each creates.
2. In stanza 4, the narrator keeps climbing and singing despite the sleet. What does this tell you about the narrator?

■ KEY WORDS

- stanza: a group of lines in a poem, sometimes called a verse.
- alliteration: the repetition of the same consonant sound at the start of nearby words.
- sibilance: the repetition of soft 's' and 'sh' sounds for emphasis.

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.5

The writer's toolkit

Language and effect

Every choice a writer makes has an effect. A short sentence can land like a blow. A list can build a rhythm. An unexpected word can startle a reader awake.

1. Look at this sentence from the poem: "I stumbled down, my journey done."
 - a. Why do you think the poet chose "stumbled" rather than "walked"?
 - b. What effect does the short phrase "my journey done" create at the end of a line?
2. Choose one line from either extract that you think is especially effective. Write a sentence explaining the choice the writer made and its effect.

✦ DID YOU KNOW

The word "adventure" comes from the Latin adventurus, "about to happen". Every adventure story is, at its heart, about something that is just about to happen, which is exactly the feeling of suspense you have been studying.

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.6

Writing your own adventure

Planning, drafting, editing

Now it is your turn. You are going to write the suspenseful opening of an adventure story of your own invention.

1. Plan your opening by making notes on these questions:
 - Who is your main character, and what do they want?
 - Where and when is your story set?
 - What impossible or dangerous thing appears at the start?
 - What will you withhold from the reader to create suspense?
2. Write the first two or three paragraphs of your story. Aim to make your reader desperate to know what happens next.

STORY OPENING · DRAFT

1. Edit your draft. Read it aloud. Cut any word that is not doing work, and strengthen your single most suspenseful sentence.

 PEER ASSESSMENT

Swap openings with a partner. Read your partner's opening and tell them: the moment you most wanted to read on, and one place where they could build even more suspense. Then revise your own opening using their feedback.

 NOW I CAN

- ☐ I can comment on the features of adventure and suspense stories.
- ☐ I can describe the effects of language and grammatical choices.
- ☐ I can plan, write and edit a suspenseful story opening.

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.F

Final project • The adventure anthology

★ FINAL PROJECT

The adventure anthology

Your class is going to publish an anthology of original adventure openings. Yours will be one of them. Polish the opening you drafted in Session 1.6 into a finished piece of between 300 and 400 words, ready for publication.

What to hand in

- Your polished opening of 300 to 400 words, with a title.
- A short writer's commentary explaining two techniques you used and why.
- A one-line "hook" for the back of the anthology, to make a reader pick your story.

How it will be judged

CRITERION	WEIGHT
Suspense and reader engagement	40%
Control of language and voice	30%
Quality of editing and polish	20%
The writer's commentary	10%

Before you hand it in

Opening line

Does your first sentence make a reader need the second one?

Setting

Can a reader see and hear where they are within the first paragraph?

Withholding

Have you kept one thing back deliberately, so the reader has to keep going?

Tense

Is your tense consistent, and does any shift happen on purpose?

Read aloud

Have you read it out loud and cut the words you stumbled over?

Title

Does your title promise something without giving it away?

UNIT 1 - TOPIC 1.R

Check your progress

1. What is a genre? Name two features of the adventure genre.
2. What is the difference between a story's setting and its narrative structure?
3. What is a monologue, and what does it mean to capture a character's voice?
4. Define alliteration and sibilance, and give an example of each.
5. Name two techniques a writer can use to build suspense.
6. Why might a writer choose a short sentence at a tense moment?
7. What does it mean to "read like a writer"?
8. In the poem 'The Long Road over Serra', what journey does the narrator make, and how do they feel when it ends?
9. Write one suspenseful sentence about a character opening a door.

Evaluation

Be honest. Colour the circle that matches how you feel about each outcome: green means confident, amber means nearly there, red means needs more work.

I CAN ...	GREEN	AMBER	RED
identify the features of an adventure story read an extract closely and work out meanings from context write and perform a monologue in a character's voice identify alliteration and sibilance and describe their effects
analyse how language choices create suspense
write and edit a suspenseful opening

✔ WHAT CAN YOU DO?

- ☐ Identify the genre and setting of a story.
- ☐ Work out word meanings from context.
- ☐ Write a monologue in a character's voice.
- ☐ Identify alliteration and sibilance in a poem.
- ☐ Analyse how writers build suspense.
- ☐ Plan, draft and edit a suspenseful opening.

UNIT 1 ROUND-UP

genre · setting · context · voice · narrative structure · stanza · alliteration · sibilance · suspense

Along the way · desk notes

Keep a short craft log for the rest of the year. After every unit, add three lines only:

1. One technique I can now name.
2. One sentence I wrote that I am proud of.
3. One question I still want to ask a writer.

MY CRAFT LOG • UNIT 1

→ GO A LITTLE FURTHER

Find a published adventure opening in the school library. Do not copy it. Write three sentences explaining how the writer uses one of the techniques from this unit. Bring the title and author to the next lesson.

LIBRARY FIND · TITLE, AUTHOR, ONE TECHNIQUE

EXTRA DRAFT SPACE

Word list

Words taught in Unit 1. Keep this list open while you write.

WORD	MEANING
genre	a particular type of text, such as adventure, comedy or fantasy
setting	the place and time in which a story happens
context	the words and situation around something, which help you understand it voice	the way a particular character speaks or thinks in fiction
narrative structure	the order in which the events of a story are told monologue	a speech by one character, spoken aloud or written as if spoken quest	a journey with a goal, full of obstacles
stanza	a group of lines in a poem
alliteration	the repetition of the same consonant sound at the start of nearby words
sibilance	the repetition of soft s and sh sounds for emphasis
suspense	the feeling of anxious excitement that makes a reader keep reading

Sources and references

Original fiction and poetry in this sample were written for Prime Books, 2026.

The word adventure is discussed via its Latin root adventurus ("about to happen"), a standard school etymology.

Cascais and the Portuguese serra appear as original story settings. They are real place-types in Portugal; the events of the stories are invented.

Third-party learner books held in PDF/Input were used only as scope reference for the year plan. No continuous prose, examples or page designs from those sources appear in this book.

Cover and interior brand logos are the real Prime School / Prime Books marks.

For teachers

Audience. Year 7 / Stage 7, ages about 11-12, Cambridge Pathway lower secondary English.

This sample. Unit 1 only (Adventure), with front matter and this back matter. Units 2 to 5 are mapped in 06-SCHEME-MAP.md and not yet authored.

Pedagogy. Each session pairs an original text with a craft focus, then asks pupils to write or speak using the same tool. Speaking is compulsory, not optional extension.

Assessment. The final project (adventure anthology opening, 300-400 words plus commentary) is the main written outcome. Session checklists support formative talk.

Language. British English throughout. Portuguese names and places are deliberate flavour for Prime School pupils.

Teacher review. See 07-REVIEW.md for the professor fix map applied into this rebuild (contents table, front-matter structure, extract blurb wording, paired-partner language, context tip phrasing).

PRIME BOOKS

English

Year 7 · Cambridge Lower Secondary · Student Manual

Read between every line.

This Year 7 English course builds confident readers and precise writers: wide reading, real writing purposes and discussion that sharpens thinking.

INSIDE THIS BOOK

- Wide reading across genres and eras
- Writing for real audiences and purposes
- Vocabulary, grammar and style in context
- Speaking, listening and debate
- Regular checkpoints with model answers

Prime Books · English

Ages 11–12 · Lower Secondary

primeschool.pt