Student's Book 1

William Collins' dream of knowledge for all began with the publication of his first book in 1819. A self-educated mill worker, he not only enriched millions of lives, but also founded a flourishing publishing house. Today, staying true to this spirit, Collins books are packed with inspiration, innovation and practical expertise. They place you at the centre of a world of possibility and give you exactly what you need to explore it.

To the teacher

How to use this book

- Key texts and images

The texts in Stage 1 provide a wide variety of different genres for learners to enjoy. The colourful illustrations provide enjoyment as well as essential support for learners as they learn to read. Learners are introduced to stories by published authors and a variety of illustration styles.

- Remember boxes

These are used to remind learners to do things that they have already learned, such as the correct use of punctuation marks.

- Word book

These are introduced in Unit 7 in Stage 1 and are used throughout this course. Word books allow learners to compile their own personal dictionaries which they can refer to in their writing activities. They also help learners to develop dictionary skills.

- Thinking time

These occur at the end of each unit in the Student's Book. Learners are encouraged to reflect on what they have read, listened to, discussed and learned.

 - What colours are the fish?
 - How many fish are there?
 - Do you think the fish are friends?
 - Why do you think that?
- 2 Read page 42. Talk about what you think the rest of the story is going to be about.

Funny Fish

Three funny fish were swimming in the sea.

One funny fish said, "Look at me!"

"I am bright and funny and red."

"I am the best fish here," it said.

Then a big fish came and swish, swish, swish ...

That was the end of the funny red fish.

Two funny fish were
swimming in the sea.

One funny fish said,
"Look at ME!
I am yellow –
as bright as the sun!"

Then the big fish came and ...
Yum, yum, yum!

One funny fish was
swimming in the sea.
It said,
"No one ever looks at me."

Then along came the big fish –
oh, dear me.

The funny fish said,
"He can't see me!
I can hide.
I can look like a stone,
so the big bad fish
leaves me alone!"

Reading and writing

- 1 PAIR WORK.

The Small Bun

A hungry man baked a small bun. He sat down with his wife to eat the small bun but ...

... the small bun hopped off the dish and ran. Its little legs ran so fast that the bun got away.

The small bun met a hungry sheep by the gate.
"Lunch! Yummy-yum!" said the sheep.

"I am too fast for the man and his wife, and I am too fast for you!" said the bun.
Its little legs ran so fast that the bun got away.

The small bun met a hungry goat in the lane.
 "Stand still till I eat you!" said the goat.

"I am too fast for the man and his wife and the sheep, and I am too fast for you!" said the bun.
 Its little legs ran so fast that the bun got away.

The small bun met a cunning fox by the river.
 "What a plump little bun!" said the cunning fox, licking his lips.

"I am too fast for the man and his wife, and the sheep, and the goat, and I am too fast for you!" said the bun.
 But ...

... the river was there.
The small bun was trapped!
It kept running about, with the
fox running after it.
They ran so fast that they ran out of running and stopped.

"You have beaten me," the fox huffed and puffed. "Get on my back and I will carry you
across the river."

"If I get on your back, you will eat me!" said the bun.

"Trust me," said the cunning fox.

The bun got on the back of the fox.
But the fox stopped in the middle of the river.
"Why have you stopped?" asked
the bun.

"To eat you!" said the fox.
Gulp! Yum, yum, yum!
And that was the end of
the bun.

9 Life lessons

Reading and listening

Listen to the story. Follow the words.

Anansi and Turtle

Anansi the spider sat down to dinner.
There was a loud knock on the door.
Anansi did not like visitors at dinner time. He did not want to share his food with guests.

Anansi opened the door and there was his friend Turtle.
“Mmm! What a lovely smell. Can I join you for dinner?” asked Turtle.
“Of course,” said Anansi.

“Oh Turtle, your hands are dirty. You cannot eat food with dirty hands,” said Anansi.
“I had a long walk to get here, that is why my hands are dirty. I will go and wash them,” replied Turtle.

“Turtle walks slowly,” thought Anansi. “I have time to eat.”
“Yum, yum, rice and beans, sweet potatoes, beef and dumplings,” said Anansi.
Anansi began to eat, stuffing food into his mouth.

When Turtle returned, he saw that the plates were empty. "Why did you not wait for me?" asked Turtle. "You were too slow and I was hungry," answered Anansi. Turtle left with an empty tummy.

When Turtle got home, he thought, "Anansi tricked me. I must teach him a lesson."

Next day, Anansi found an invitation in his mailbox.

Anansi put on his best coat and hat, and set off to the pond where Turtle lived.

Turtle had set the table at the bottom of the pond. All of Anansi's favourite foods – jerk chicken, rice and peas, and sweet coconut drops were piled on the table.
"Come down," shouted Turtle.

Anansi jumped into the water, but he did not sink.
"I know," said Anansi, "I will fill my coat pockets with stones. That will help me sink to the bottom."

Glug! Glug! Glug! Anansi went to the bottom of the pond.
"Wait. Remember your manners Anansi," said Turtle. "You must not eat dinner with your hat and coat on."
Anansi took his hat and coat off. He floated to the top of the water.

Anansi climbed out of the pond. He stood at the edge and watched Turtle eat all the scrumptious food.
"This time, Turtle has tricked me," he sighed.
